Dear [redacted]

STAT

First let me say how very much I appreciated your warm and generous letter that reached me today. Secondly, and officially, allow me also to express my warm thanks for the hospitality extended by yourself and your partners to the J.C.S. working party during the recent series of meetings in the Los Angeles area. As permanent chairman of the Group, regretfully in absentia on this occasion, I have received several expressions of appreciation over the facilities you so generously provided as well as the graciousness of your hospitality.

In a more personal vein let me add my own "thank you". I had looked forward to the meetings as an opportunity to visit with you and to see something of your organization. You were most kind and genuinely hospitable to offer the use of your conference room and office space to our group. I gather from [redacted] that the meetings were very successful and stimulating ones--a success for which certainly you were in part responsible.

STAT

We here are all looking forward to your next visit to Washington and hope that in your busy schedule you will have time in which we can enjoy wrestling with a few carefully selected intellectual bears, either technical or philosophical.

Sincerely yours,

ARTHUR C. LUNDAHL
